From: Malcolm Dean
To: Microsoft ATR
Date: 12/6/01 4:46pm
Subject: The Redmond Monopoly

No one doubts that the future will bring more computers, of every kind, everywhere, including Government.

If the Government cannot come to grips with Microsoft's monopoly, what hope is there for Government to control its own creeping automation?

A prime goal of government is to secure future opportunity. If such a deceitful monopoly is tolerated, what opportunities will be denied?

Microsoft Fraud Analysis:
http://www.billparish.com/msftfraudfacts.html

Microsoft Nightmares:
http://www.aaxnet.com/topics/nightmare.html#money

Malcolm Dean
Writer, Editor, IT Strategist
1015 Gayley Av #1229, Los Angeles CA 90024-3424
malcolmdean@earthlink.net
213-401-2197 fax

Recent publications:
Contributing Editor, DesktopLinux.com
The O'Reilly Network (www.oreillynet.com/pub/au/228);
CertMag; Certification Corner
Former News Editor, Maximum Linux, XML Journal